Wackers, 2012-12-06 Noninvasive visualization of myocardial infarction using radionuclides dates back over eighteen years Edward A Carr and William H Beierwaltes were first to report 1962 successful external imaging of myocardial infarcts in dogs and in man using an Anger scintillation camera They demonstrated that after intravenous administration of ⁸⁶Rb or ¹³¹I CS an infarct was visualized as a cold spot while ²⁰³Hg labeled chlormeridin resulted in a hot spot image of the infarct Since then there have been major developmental improvements in available radionuclides scintillation cameras and computer processing capabilities In particular the development of mobile gamma cameras opened the possibility to obtain high quality images even at the bedside of critically ill patients Since the development in 1974 of a new radiopharmaceutical ²⁰¹Tl and the application of ^{99m}Tc pyrophosphate for myocardial imaging these imaging agents are widely used for the detection of acute myocardial infarction However for practical application frequently there appears to be uncertainty or even confusion concerning the relative merits of each method Praxisratgeber Klassikerkauf Mercedes-Benz 190 (W 201)
