F-102 Delta Dagger Units Peter E. Davies, 2020-05-28 World War II saw the development of the heavy bomber as a decisive weapon which in sufficient numbers could overcome defensive fighters and guns and lay waste to strategic targets. The addition of nuclear weapons to the bomber's armament made it even more formidable and by the late 1940s US planners saw the growth of a Soviet nuclear armed bomber fleet as a terrifying threat to North American security. Conventional subsonic fighters with guns and free flight air to air rockets would be incapable of reaching these incoming bombers in time to prevent even one from delivering a devastating nuclear attack. As a result supersonic speed, long range guided missiles and precise radar based control of an interception became prerequisites for a new breed of fighters beginning with the F 102. A massive research and development effort produced the F 102A 1954 Fighter, the J57 afterburning turbojet, its Hughes MX 1554 fire control system and in due course the Semi Active Ground Environment (SAGE) radar and communications network that covered North America to guide its airborne defences. In service F 102As also provided air defence in Europe with USAF in the Far East and in Southeast Asia where they protected US airbases in South Vietnam and Thailand from air attack by North Vietnamese fighters and bombers and escorted B 52s and fighter bombers on their attack sorties. This illustrated study from leading expert Peter E. Davis details the design, development and deployment of the futuristic F 102 including its complex research program and role in Vietnam.
